

Chapter 8 presents information related to midflame windspeeds, flame length, flame height, and other components of fire behavior. It includes techniques for estimating different fire parameters, including rate of spread, and provides charts, graphs, and worksheets to help determine such characteristics as probability of ignition and map spread distance.